

Junior Prom. Set For Dec. 5; Tickets Go On Sale Nov. 24

Holmes' Band To Play at Formal Dance

McGill's social event of the year, the Junior Prom., will be held in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium on Friday, December 5th, with Johnny Holmes and his orchestra supplying the music, it was announced by the Committee last night.

Tickets for this event at five dollars per couple will be on sale in the McGill Union on Monday, November 24th, for Arts, Science and Commerce, while other faculties and schools will obtain their tickets from the class representatives mentioned below. Juniors (third year students) will have preference for all tickets before the sale is open to the general student body.

Johnny Holmes

Johnny Holmes and his fourteen piece band needs no introduction to McGill students, having played at numerous college functions during the past few years. Holmes is featuring Gordie Pfeiffer, who will handle all vocals during the dancing period which is set as from 10 p.m. to three a.m. This will be a busy season for Holmes as far as college formals go. Johnny is scheduled to appear at the Macdonald Senior Prom and the Toronto Varsity Engineers' Ball in the near future.

Table reservation arrangements will be announced as soon as the ticket sale is underway. The committee is as follows: Conrad Shatner, chairman, Law; Betty Brewer, Arts and Science; Ross Cavey, Commerce; Keith Wake, Engineering; John Searman, Theology; Barbara Dornbush, Women's Union; Shirley Matheson, Physical Education; Nonie Cronyn, Physiotherapy; Jane Macintyre, Graduate Nurses; Berl Mendel, Dentistry; Mike Siegal, Medicine; Doug Shadbol, Architecture; Bob Gill, SEC; Mary Hsiller, Publicity.

Dawson Hillel Society To Hear Rab. Shuchat

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 18, Dawson Hillelites will have the opportunity of hearing Rabbi Wilfrid Shuchat speak to them about his recent visit to Palestine this past summer. His subject will be "My Impressions of Palestine" and should prove very interesting due to the first hand material that he obtained there. He is a graduate of McGill University and of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America where he was very active in student affairs, and at present, is officiating at the Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue.

This year's new executive, which includes Mervin Silverberg as president, Hy Reister and Hy Stromburg as vice-presidents, Tony Shine as secretary, and Pete Benjamin as treasurer, will be inaugurated. The meeting will be held in Room 24 of Dawson Hall and will start at 7:00 p.m. sharp due to the extensive program planned which will also include a sing-song and refreshments.

Student Labor Club To Hear Mr. R. Haddow

The Union Ballroom, on Wednesday, Nov. 19, at five o'clock, will be the scene of another in the series of meetings sponsored by the Students Labour Club to acquaint the campus with the trade union movement.

Mr. Bob Haddow, National Director of the C.F.O. and Leather Workers Union, C.I.O., will address the meeting on the subject "Civil Rights for Quebec Labour."

During the war, Mr. Haddow was instrumental in bringing 75,000 Quebec workers into the trade union movement, one of the greatest trade union developments in the province. Having been chosen as the Grand Lodge Representative of Lodge 712 I.A.M., in 1944, he became secretary of the A.F.L. Metal Trades Council.

Mr. Haddow has worked for the last two years in organizing the boot and shoe industry in this province. During the year 1946, 2,500 Montreal shoe workers have been organized.

Arctic Institute Probes Life In Canadian North

By FRED CHAFE
(Daily Staff Writer)

In the spacious, brightly-lighted Ethnological Museum of the Medical Building of McGill University, the Arctic Institute of North America has its headquarters. In its library shelves and show cases may be found books and exhibits covering almost every known phase of life and conditions in the vast, ice-covered regions to the north of Canada.

New fields opened by military and scientific operations during the war made it evident that if Arctic research was to be carried out in a systematic, co-ordinated manner, a central information centre and organization bureau was essential. With this end in view, a meeting attended by representatives from Alaska, Greenland, Labrador, Canada, Newfoundland, and the United States was held in New York in May, 1944, and at this meeting the Arctic Institute of North America was born. In October of the following year its headquarters were opened in space provided by McGill University, under the direction of Dr. A. L. Washburn.

Arctic Studies

The Institute began with an impressive program for furthering Arctic studies, and, with the aid of grants from the National Research Council, the Carnegie Corporation, and the Hudson's Bay Company, has made steady progress during its short existence. Its aims are to assist Arctic research and serve as an information centre and a means of releasing data to scientists and the general public.

Progress in many fields of scitific endeavour is hampered at present because a number of vital questions remain unanswered, and the answers to these questions lie hidden, in many cases, in the frozen reaches of the Arctic and Sub-Arctic. One problem, for instance, which is continually plaguing navigation, is the effect of terrestrial magnetism in the polar districts. The field of radio would like to know much more about atmospheric conditions in the Ice Cap and what they do to communication. And in the fields of archeology, biology, and geology, to name a few, knowledge is still far from complete.

Records Grow

The records of the Institute are growing rapidly as this information is being accumulated. Yearly fellowships are being awarded for scientific research. In the past two years, Dr. Nicholas Polunin of McGill University and Dr. Jacques Rousseau of the Montreal Botanical Gardens have been studying the flora of the Ungava Peninsula with the aid of fellowships from the Arctic Institute.

The Institute headquarters in the Medical Building now house a library of several thousand books and pamphlets and a collection of maps which Dr. Washburn believes to be the best private collection in North America. The library contains many valuable European scientific periodicals, autographed books by such renowned Arctic explorers as Nansen, Peary, and Wilkins, and a rare edition of Samuel Hearne's report on his Ajax will be the scene of Canada's second national International Student Service on the week-end of November 21. This college, situated on the shores of Lake Ontario, 20 miles from Toronto, was once a rich munitions factory. It has undergone an enormous transformation to become a self-contained university town, with nearly 3,000 students.

In August, 1945, the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto took over Ajax as the annex to the Faculty of Applied Science. Buildings were converted into classrooms, laboratories, and residences. Bus services to commute to Toronto, and to shuttle between the residences and the classrooms—over a mile apart—were established. A cafeteria, and recreational and athletic centre were set up. In January, 1946, registration began, and students soon swung in to the ordinary, though according to many, a Siberian-like version of university life.

Morris, Ryan to Attend ISS Conference at Ajax Nov. 21

Once a 112 million dollar munitions factory, now a self-contained university town on the shores of Lake Ontario, 20 miles from the City of Toronto, Ajax division of the University of Toronto will be the scene of Canada's second national International Student Service Conference on the week-end of November 21st. Lasting for three days with ISS delegates from 20 Canadian universities and representatives from other Canadian and American student organizations, the Conference will discuss both international and national policy for the coming year.

Ann Ryan and Alex Morris have been appointed delegates to the convention as representatives of McGill NFCUS.

"In order to maintain unity of purpose and action, a national organization must have an annual Conference," said Gordon Campbell, Secretary of ISS in Canada. "This Conference is designed to be a working Conference," he continued. "Experience has shown that a general educational programme on European student conditions must be integrated with the ISS relief campaigns in Canadian universities."

Three Levels

Planned to acquaint student delegates with ISS problems on three levels—international, national and local, the Conference will first consider reports from representatives from the International Office, Geneva, and the Canadian Committee. Following this delegates from local committees across Canada will report on the organization of their committees, their relief and educational activities, and offer suggestions for other local committees. The conference will also hear reports of international activities from the Canadian student organizations—National Federation of Canadian University Students, Student Christian Movements, the Canadian Branch of the Pax Romana, and the American organizations—World Student Service Fund, ISS, and National Student Organization.

One of the most important items of business slated for discussion on Saturday is the promotion of a national magazine for Canadian university students. The Canadian Committee, feeling the urgency of developing national unity among Canadian students, has proposed to NFCUS and other student organizations a student magazine which would acquaint Canadian students with news of both national and international student worlds. Local committees have been asked to

Red Wings Calling for Nominations

The Red Wing Society is asking for nominations for eight new members. The nomination sheets are to be handed in by November 25, at the R.V.C. switchboard for Dr. R. Riley, the President of the Society. The posts to be filled are as follows: Two representatives, one resident and one non-resident from first, second and third year, one representative from first year Physiotherapy, and one representative from second year M.S.P.E.

The Red Wing Society was organized in 1938; it is an honorary organization corresponding to the Scarlet Key. Its traditional red and white uniforms have been seen this Fall at all the Freshman Reception events, the home football games, and at the Women's Union elections.

Each nomination sheet must be signed by 15 women students and the nominee must be a member of the Women's Union. They must be in good academic standing; no conditioned students are eligible. The election will take place on December 3, 1947.

McGill Gains Fame Through Her Museums

McGill students perhaps do not realize that their museums provide information not only for themselves but for many tourists, natives, and diversified groups.

The McGill museums are fast becoming a landmark to people from near and far. Last year their staffs looked after visitors from Australia, the U.S.A., China, Ceylon, Sweden, and near-by Caughnawaga. Montreal groups included La Chambre de Commerce des Jeunes, Kindergartens, schools and several from the Y.M.C.A. Montreal Police rookies toured the museums as part of their course, in order to be able to direct and inform city tourists.

The museum staffs were also kept busy answering requests. Advertising agencies required pictures of a box constrictor or a snarling rat; housewives, wishing to exterminate carpet beetles, rang up for advice; lonely English people longed to see an English thrush.

In addition to all these services, many articles and reports for class study are lent out. The moodiest being in the Beatty Hall common room is borrowed from the museums.

Thus McGill museums, as points of interest and sources of information, are year after year coming more into the spotlight of international fame.

CORRECTION

There was an error in the announcement which appeared in last night's Daily concerning chest X-rays for women at the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium on Friday, November 21, from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon. Women with surnames beginning with S and T are to appear at that time, rather than those with surnames beginning with G and T, as announced.

Change To Constitution Of Women's Union Passed By Big Majority At Meet

Pianist Goldstein To Play Thursday

Miss Ella Goldstein, world-famed Palestinian pianist, will play Thursday evening at 8:30 p.m. at the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium on Pine Avenue. The concert is third in a series sponsored by the Canadian Concerts and Artists.

Serge Koussevitsky, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has acclaimed Miss Goldstein as the greatest woman pianist since Carro Carreno.

Particularly noted for her rendition of the works of Schumann, the artist will include in her programme, the Carnival Suite, regarded as one of his more difficult pieces.

Tickets are available at the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium at 9:00 a.m. Tuesday morning. The price to students is twenty-five cents, on presentation of a Student Athletic Coupon book.

1st Shoestring Play Monday November 24

The performance of Riders to the Sea in the Union Ballroom this Monday will mark the opening presentation of the Shoestring Theatre. This organization, operating under the auspices of the Players' Club, will present one-act plays to the student body, free of charge, from time to time through the year.

The Executive of the Players' Club decided on this title for their Workshop ventures after considering the budget they would be able to allow these plays. An ambitious programme has been planned, and plays will be acted, directed, and produced entirely by students.

Monday's showing of Sygne's renowned poetic tragedy will begin sharp at 5:15, and no audience will be admitted after curtain time. The stage will be arranged so as to cut down somewhat the Ballroom's seating space. This has been found necessary because of acoustical difficulties in the Ballroom. The running time of the play will be a little over half an hour.

Debating Club Meets

At 5 o'clock this afternoon, in the Union Ballroom, the Arts and Science Debating Society will hold its first meeting of the season. All those who are interested in debating are urged to attend.

The feature of the program will be a talk by Mr. John Dando of McGill's English department on "The Rudiments of Public Speaking." Also on the agenda are important announcements concerning plans for the coming season.

Reporter Finds Peterson Ideal Housing Solution

By JENNIFER PARRY

Peterson Residence, where the country air enlivens and the birth rate is ten times higher than average, represents a welcome haven to homeless McGill students. The only stipulation for entrance is a wife, and taking into account its comparative cheapness and the fact that your wife will probably help support you, residence therein seems to offer the solution for many student problems.

In September, 1946, the former R.C.A.F. Manning Depot at Lachine was converted for use by McGill. Eighty-one couples, forty children, and eighteen single students promptly moved in. In December, however, the single students were promptly moved out to Dawson. This year the residences at Lachine are housing close to 500, and at the beginning of the session it was formally named the Peterson Residence, in honour of a former McGill president.

Five H Huts

The residence consists of five Standard H huts, so named because of their shape. Each hut contains about 24 two-roomed suites, furnished with bare essentials, wash rooms, shower rooms, storage

Tea To Be Served In RVC Cafeteria From Now On

At the meeting of the Women's Union, held yesterday afternoon at 5 p.m. in R.V.C., a proposed amendment to the constitution calling for the election of two members at large to the executive of the Women's Union was passed by a large majority. These two members, whose function will be to aid the other members of the executive, and to ensure that the women will be more fully represented, may be students from any year except the fourth, and will hold office from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31 of 1948. They will be elected early in December.

Dawson Vets To Hold Meet In Theatre 1

Tomorrow the Dawson College Student Veteran's Society will hold a meeting in Theatre 1. Reports from the National Council of Student Veteran Societies, and the Montreal District Student Veteran's Society will be given by the Vice-President Bob Muskatov.

Following the reading of the reports, the meeting will decide whether the elections of the Executive will be held by ballot or by immediate election after nominations from the floor. The Executive which includes positions for President, Vice-President, secretary-treasurer, and publicity director, will have to be filled by members of the veteran student body on the Dawson Campus.

Membership cards will also be distributed at the meeting. Although all veterans are automatically members of the society, the council requests payment of a nominal entrance fee of twenty-five cents.

U.J.S.A. Conducts Fund Campaign

Professors Vineberg, Cohen, and Solin and Mr. A. M. Klein, have been appointed Honorary Chairmen of the United Jewish Student Appeal.

The U.J.S.A. is campaigning for funds to distribute among several charitable and educational institutions in Canada, Europe and Palestine. The campaign will be conducted in all the colleges in the Montreal area during the period Nov. 24-Dec. 26.

An extensive program will feature numerous cultural and social events. The first of these will consist of a dance at Hill House on Saturday, Nov. 22, commencing at 8:30 p.m. Following this there will be a rally on Sunday, Nov. 23 at 7:30 p.m. On subsequent days during the campaign, regular midday luncheon entertainment will be presented at the House.

Several other points of interest and varying importance were discussed at the meeting, of which the major one is the announcement that starting today, and in effect daily from now on, tea will be served in the R.V.C. cafeteria from 3 to 5 p.m., at the nominal cost of five cents, or ten cents with cake or cookies. All women students are invited to take advantage of this privilege, and, if so desired, they may take their tea into the lounge, but it has been emphasized that if this is done, cups and saucers must be returned to the cafeteria before 5.

A motion was passed to send Christmas parcels overseas, and it is hoped that women students will bring contributions to the Women's Union office before the end of the week. If there are any suggestions for specific places to send the parcels, they will be gratefully accepted.

Arts Common Room

There have been many plans made for the renovation of the Women's Common Room in the Arts Building, and it is hoped that these may be completed during the Christmas holidays. Many reforms (Continued on Page 4)

Annual Dinner Will Be Held For Medsmen

The Medical Faculty's annual dinner sponsored by the Medical Undergraduate Society will be held on Thursday, November 20th, at 8:30 p.m. in the Mount Royal Hotel (Cady Hall).

The guest of honor and speaker for the evening will be Dean Fred Smith, new dean of the Medical Faculty. Dr. D. L. Thomson, Professor of Biochemistry, will act as toastmaster.

All McGill medical students and faculty members and internes of the McGill teaching hospitals are invited. The seating arrangements will be made in groups of from six to nine persons at individual tables. Any of the ticket salesmen or Mr. Marshall, Medical Building porter, will be glad to reserve a table for groups attending. Dinner will be served at 9:00 p.m.

Tickets are now on sale at $5.00 per person and can be obtained from class representatives or from Mr. Marshall in the medical building. Class representatives are Miss Pat Bohan, Med I; Gib Allen, Med II; Harry Pitts, Med III; and Fred Gregory, Med IV.

Sociology Chairman To Address Society

Dr. Carl A. Dawson, chairman of the McGill Sociology Department, will be guest speaker at the first official meeting of the McGill Sociological Society today at 1 p.m. in Room 49 of the Arts Building. Dr. Dawson will outline the functions and activities of the society, of which he is Honorary President.

Designed to provide students of this social science with a forum in which to discuss some of the problems of their science, the McGill Sociological Society has in the past featured distinguished speakers on topics of social interest.

The first official meeting today will see the election of a new executive and the formulation of a program for the current year.

ISS AND INTERNATIONALISM

The announcement of the forthcoming national conference of the International Student Service at Toronto once again brings to mind what is probably the most pressing and vital problem of our day—international understanding and co-operation.

The leading countries of the world, gathered about the conference tables of international organizations, find themselves, through basic ideological differences, barely squeezing under the fence of agreement on every issue which is placed before them. And more often than not, some find themselves too large to manoeuvre the gap—blasted as they are with smug self-righteousness.

However, the concept of "One World" remains with us as a reality from which there is no escape. What we do as a nation in the larger sphere of the world must be done with complete consideration of the countries which our action might affect—economically, politically and socially.

A publication issued by the I.S.S. last year had the following to say concerning the "One World":

"One of the surprising things about Wendell Wilkie's 'One World' was that it took a world cruise for him to discover that there was really only one world. The 20-year history of International Student Service is a story of this discovery being gradually unfolded to the students and professors of 31 countries. I.S.S. believes, as Wilkie found out, that internationalism to be vital depends largely upon personal contact and co-operation."

And despite the irreconcilability of conflicting ideologies, we hold this form of internationalism particularly vital and practical for the youth of all countries—the students at McGill and elsewhere in Canada.

In a sense of the word, the I.S.S. has pioneered the field of international student relations. This organization, despite the material benefits it has bestowed upon impoverished European and Oriental students, has already begun a program of student exchanges—a program which augurs well for more complete common understanding and appreciation.

But in order to be the more effective, the I.S.S. must, of necessity, extend its scope in Canada, and maintain a close, if not intimate relationship, with the various campus committees of the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

The forthcoming three-day conference, which begins next Friday, has a tremendous responsibility: that of fulfilling their all-important commitments. We shall look forward to the outcome of their deliberations, which we hope, will embrace Canadian students in a dynamic, active program of international understanding and co-operation.

The attainment of such understanding on an international scale among Canadian students will mean much toward the certainty and maintenance of peace—in our time.—A.T.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Veterans' Society

(Editor's Note: The following letter, although longer than the desired 200 words, has been published since its authors have been directly involved in discussion in these columns.)

The Editor,
The McGill Daily:

With the Vets' elections over there remain one or two points to be made clear, chiefly about the past executive's attitude towards the grants question. It has been charged that at the last national conference we consistently voted against increased grants.

Mr. Gottheil in making this charge erred in fact, and although aware of this, he has offered neither an apology nor a retraction of his serious charge of breach of faith. In order to clarify the story on grants, we quote from the president's report:

"At last year's election meeting the Executive were instructed to campaign for an increase in grants. To effect this a delegation of three members of the Executive met the minister of veterans' affairs and the minister of finance in Ottawa. These ministers categorically stated the government would not entertain the possibility of an increase, giving two main reasons: in their opinion the government had provided more generously for student veterans than for any other discharged groups; each minister emphasized the position that the grants were originally considered and are still considered as an aid to education, rather than a complete underwriting of all costs of the educational course.

"With this point-blank refusal by the government the Executive considered the matter and a general meeting was called. This meeting had to be adjourned before the matter was settled for lack of a quorum. It was then proposed by Alistair Fraser that a referendum be sent out, and he prepared it for distribution to all members.

"The three choices were answered as follows: to campaign for an across-the-board increase, 47; to campaign for a sliding scale increase or category system, 105; to discontinue the campaign, for any increase, 101. There were thus three views to represent at the conference but a decided majority against a blanket increase.

"At the N.C.S.V., Len Starkey a delegate and a McGill Student, presented the case for the 'across-the-board' increase and his motion, seconded by Lou Gottheil of Dawson, was moved on the floor of the conference but was defeated. The 'sliding-scale' was argued by Al Fraser and after a long discussion with several conflicting votes, it lost by a slim majority to the motion asking the government to consider granting of cost-of-living bonus. This had been presented by the delegates of Macdonald College, McGill University. Discussion by Bill Archer on the discontinuance of the campaign was limited to a period of three minutes in the general meeting. He, having acted as chairman during the lengthy sessions of the financial panel, had no voice in that discussion. The N.C.S.V. has been pressing Ottawa to consider the 'cost-of-living bonus' plan but without success to date."

Lou Gottheil has charged Bill Archer and Frank Common with voting against the compromise motion to have the Government consider a cost-of-living bonus. This statement is absolutely false for the three delegates of the Society, Common, Archer and Fraser all voted in favor of the motion.

Further Frank Common has been charged with being 'silent' during the financial panel discussion on the grants question. It could not have been otherwise, for he is but one person and he was attending the employment panel which was meeting at the same time in another part of the building. There, with Ernie Temple, he was explaining the operations of Uni-Vet which had been revived by his executive.

We wish to emphasize that during our period of office we did our utmost to ascertain and present to the Government and the public the majority view of student veterans at McGill without regard to party, race, creed or local pressure groups.

Now that the elections are over and a campus-wide poll has chosen a new executive, we hope that a great deal of the useless controversy which has raged in the past will come to an end. Especially do we hope, that the newly-elected executive may carry on the activities of the Society and receive, by way of a change, only constructive criticism.

Sincerely,
FRANK B. COMMON,
Past President,
WILLIAM L. ARCHER,
Past Vice-President.

Vets' Grants

The Editor,
The McGill Daily,
Montreal.

Dear Sir:
As evidenced in this morning's Daily, there still seems to be considerable agitation amongst some student veterans, both here and on other camps, for higher grants. As this seems to be the biggest question concerning student veterans, this year as every year, I would like to toss a few logs on the controversial fire.

As implied to single veterans, I cannot sympathize with this campaign at all. I realize that the present rate is rather inadequate to cover living expenses entirely, but who the hell wants charity? We are a mighty poor lot of citizens if we are not prepared to stand on our own feet to some extent at least.

The student veterans are the most favoured lot of veterans of the last war as it is, and asking for frosting on our D.V.A. cake is carrying it a little too far, in my opinion. At present, we are getting about $450 a year to live on. In Montreal, that falls about $300 short of the average requirements. But so what? Anyone who is not prepared to work during the summer to make up that difference doesn't deserve an education, and doesn't have the initiative to know what to do with it anyway.

I respectfully suggest that the new executive of the Student Veterans' expend their efforts toward more constructive issues.

Sincerely yours,
L. F. Lawry, B.A. 3.

The Editor,
McGill Daily,
Sir:

I would like to point out certain portions of Fred Cleman's latest column which I, and others, feel was written in extremely poor taste.

This is not an attack on Mr. Cleman's literary style; it is merely a comment on his subject matter. Fred, being a newspaperman of long standing, should know that the primary requisite of a column is to give the highest aggregate satisfaction to the maximum number of readers. To do this, the writer must deal with matters of interest to the vast majority of the student body. It is my contention that he deliberately went out of his way to

New CBC Program Initiated By Narrator-Writer Franklin

A new quarter-hour CBC coast to coast series called Canadian Athletes was initiated last Sunday at 12:15 when Martin Franklin told the story of the famous boxer, Joe Montfrant. The series, which will be on CBM every week at the same time, will recount the interesting happenings in the lives of famous Canadians in the sports world. Martin Franklin, the writer and narrator, is a senior student at McGill.

After a brief account of Joe Montfrant's ancestry, Mr. Franklin told about the various championships Montfrant had won without effort, seemingly before he was dry behind the ears. At the tender age of seventeen, he was made foreman of a lumber camp, due, of course, to his superhuman brawn. When he was an old man of thirty-six, Montfrant was challenged by Humphries of England, a giant of 250 lbs., standing 6' 4" in bare feet. After a breathless seventeen rounds, he stretched Humphries out on the canvas, thereby winning the boxing championship of the world.

Joe Montfrant was feared by some but respected by all, and though many challenged him, none ever beat him. To quote Joe, "There isn't a man on earth I fear—God alone is my Master." Montfrant, too, was wise, that is, until the age of sixty, when he married. He died four years later, peacefully in his sleep. E. R. G.

Defencemen Fisher And Sanderson to Play this Weekend

There was cheering news from the Red hockey camp, as it was learned that the injury to big Mike Fisher was not as serious as it was feared. The large rearguard was badly cut on the lip by an errant stick on Thursday, and was reported to be sidelined for two weeks. The injury, however, has responded well to treatment, and Mike was on the ice at yesterday's practice session. He will definitely be in the lineup this week-end when the Redmen tangle with the Gaels from Kingston and Les Carabins of the Universite de Montreal on successive nights.

Another slight injury was suffered on Friday, this one a bruised optic to Charles "Sandy" Sanderson, who teams up with Fisher to form one of the Red teams most effective defensive combinations. Sandy likewise, was not hurt seriously and will also be seeing a lot of action this week-end.

This pair are rookies, as far as the Red and White are concerned, but are hardly tyros on an ice sheet. Last year they formed part of the blueline bulwark for the Regina Capitals in the Regina City Senior League and previously played a lot of hockey while in the services, Sandy with the Army, Mike with the Navy.

Exponent of a more rugged style of play than his linemate, large Fisher gained a lot of respect from opponents in the pre-season exhibition tour among the provincial league towns. Tipping the scale at a solid 190 pounds, Mike revels in the heavy going and should take a heavy toll of his intercollegiate rivals.

Slightly lighter than his confrere, young Charles can also dish out the punishment, but

Aquacade to Be Featured At NDG Pool

George Athans, perennial Dominion Diving Champion and a med student at McGill will highlight the half-time entertainment at the New York-McGill water-polo game next Saturday afternoon. Also featured will be a fancy swimming exhibition by Jimmy Rose's combined McGill and MAAA mermaids.

The game is to be played in the Community Pool, the best and largest in the city, as Manager Pete Cameron intends to make the game into McGill's first Athletic Aquacade in many years.

MERMAIDS TOO!
Athans has been one of the mainstays on the Redmen's swimming teams for several years. In addition to constantly winning all diving exhibitions and meets that he enters, he has been assisting in the coaching duties for the team. His consistent point-getting ability has won several meets for the collegians.

The mermaids are expected to do three of their many sensational routines that won them high praise in Montreal swimming circles last year. The group produced their own aquacade last year at the MAAA and won acclaim from all sides.

IMPRESSIVE RECORD
The water-polo contest will not be overshadowed, however, as the Athletics from New York display the best brand of polo in the United States. Last year they successfully defended their Bermuda International crown, and only lost out in the final quarter to the Illinois AC of Chicago for the US Championship. It marked the first time in fourteen years that they did not retain the title.

Before the war, the New York squad along with a Philadelphia entry competed in an International loop against MAAA and Toronto Varsity. Spectators will have an opportunity to compare the respective merits of Canadian play as the Redmen are rated by experts to be one of the Dominion's top teams.

LEAD LEAGUE
Last year the collegians successfully defended their intercollegiate crown for the second year in a row, and they are leading the Provincial League at the present time. Seven members of the squad are hold-overs from last year.

Student coupons will be honoured at the game, although all outsiders will have to pay $1.00 to see the contest. Starting time is 3.00 sharp as the Athletics have to play the same night against the MAAA squad.

Archery Tests To Be Held in Currie Gym.

According to the latest bulletin, issued by Dot Ing, all archerettes will wend their way northward to the rifle range on Tuesday mornings from 10.00 a.m. to 12.00 noon and Thursday afternoon from 12.00 to 4.00 p.m. for the time being, until gatherings under cover of darkness can be arranged.

A system of tests are being arranged in order to classify bow wielders according to skill. With 24 arrows at 15 yards: 80 points-Yeoman; 100 points-Junior Bowman; 150 points-Bowman; 200 points-Archer and 300 points with 60 arrows-Master Archer.

Rules are (1) Tests conducted every 3 weeks starting Nov. 27th from 12.00-4.00. (2) Starting line must be straddled. (3) Only 1 practice round and no practice once test begins. (4) Only 1 contestant to a target. (5) 2 people to check score and sign score sheet. (6) No rest between rounds other than time needed to score and collect arrows. (7) Score sheet to be handed in to Dot Ing who will post the results and promotions on the Master Score sheet on the MWSAA notice board in R.V.C.

Phys. Eds Lose Teeth To Determined Dents

Except for three postponed games which will be played later, the regular intramural softball schedule came to a close last night as Dents II defeated Phys. Ed. III 7-2 in the opening game, and Meds I defaulted to Phys. Ed. IV in the nightcap.

The final outcome of the Dents-Phys. Ed. battle was never in doubt as Polos held the Phys. Eds to 4 hits while his mates combed Woodhouse for 10 solid base knocks with Turner and Villeneuve leading the attack. Davidson and Anderson played five ball for the Phys. Eds.

This Friday two of the postponed games will be played. At 5.15 Engineers III meet Science III and at 6 p.m. Arts and Science 3 and 4 play Dents I.

Learn to Swim Class Will Begin on Nov. 21

A learn to swim class for men is being held from 3 to 4 p.m. Fridays at the Canadian Legion Pool, 1191 Mountain Street, starting Nov. 21.

Here is a wonderful opportunity for any man who cannot swim or who can swim very little, to learn.

Every Canadian should learn to swim but many have not had the opportunity and are therefore denied one of the most enjoyable activities, especially during the summer vacation. A few hours devoted to learning the

HAPPY ENDING

This writer got one of his biggest thrills at the Queens Stadium on Saturday. It came at the conclusion of the game as, the victorious Red came charging off the field. It was well seen by the players whoop it up after their well-earned triumph, but what struck us was the sight of Vic Obeck rejoicing in the hour of triumph. He was fairly bubbling over with excitement and was seen running around trying to congratulate all his players at once. All we can say at this point is that it couldn't happen to a better guy!

FIGHTING TEAM

Now that Senior Intercollegiate Football is a thing of the past, for this year at least, it seems only fitting that we should give out with a few words about our McGill Redmen, who gave their all throughout the entire season.

Although the record of the Redmen in league play this year cannot be called a brilliant one, it is one of which the Obeck Clan need never be ashamed. The team has been constantly plagued by injuries. It has been minus as many as nine players for one encounter. Nevertheless, they have always put on a good show and the great turn-outs for each game support this claim.

In every clash the valiant Redmen fought right down to the last second. Never did they show any signs of giving up, no matter what the score. It has been maintained that the "Big Red Team" put on their greatest display of courage and fight in that first Western tilt. That day the Westerners administered a fierce 56-5 beating. However, the gallant McGill crew had marched to the Western seven as the yard line gun sounded.

GREAT COACH

This fall Vic Obeck was merely laying the groundwork for a great Red team of the future. At times the Redmen showed signs of greatness, but the odds against them were heavily stacked. Had it not been for the bad breaks they encountered during the year, the team might even have given Varsity a battle for second place. Injuries to Hayes, Barclay, Orban and other stalwarts proved too much, however.

There has never been any doubt as to the support of Vic Obeck in his new position. The student body, members of the faculty and everyone connected with him, have always admired and respected Obeck from the time he took over the post as McGill's new Head Coach. He has given McGill a position on the football map of Canada. We feel sure, that under his guidance, the old Red and White will again be battling for top honours before long.

SPORTSHOTS

Noteworthy Notes... there is a lot of discussion going around regarding the picking of the most valuable player in Senior Intercollegiate circles... McGill's candidate is, of course, Murray Hayes... Toronto has Bruce Cummings, Queens, Al Lenard... Western presents something of a problem, but we'll take Jack Parry... of this quartet one must be chosen for the honour... in this book, that man is Bruce Cummings... without his passing arm, Varsity would never have shown nearly as well as they did... he was the key to their attack and his great pigskin pitching at times overshadowed his fine booting... Queens showed a terrific array of breakaway backs on Saturday, but also an inability to move when they neared walks... that Kingston is quite a town... the streets are buzzing on Saturday night and Sunday you don't see a person on the sidewalks... the local students were very disappointed over their team's showing, but were good sports about it and congratulated the McGill students in town... Question of the week... What happened to the Canadians over the week-end?... Maybe McGill will have cheerleaderettes next year... Who knows?

simple art will pay large dividends.

DATES COMMITTEE

All organizations on the campus intending to sponsor social activities must apply to the Dates Committee for permission. Application forms are obtainable in the Students' Executive Council Office in the Union. Those societies wishing meetings, dances, etc., in the McGill Union must fill in the Dates Book, available at the Union Tuck Shop, and notify the President of the McGill Union, Bob Gill, LA. 2246 of these intentions. The Dates Committee meets every Tuesday at noon hour. Applicants are advised to petition for a date at least three weeks in advance.

prepare briefs on the format, organization and content of such a magazine to be presented at the conference.

After proposals for student-exchange and foreign travel have been considered. The Conference will go into a session on the questions of organization, publicity, and educational problems of this year's relief campaign and educational program.

Highlights

One of the highlights of the Conference will be an international forum to be held Friday night, in which Canadian students recently returned from Europe will participate. Featured in these discussions of European conditions and student problems will be Dr. Malcolm Adiseshiah, Assistant General Secretary of ISS at Geneva. Dr. Adiseshiah, who obtained his M.A. from his native university of Madras in 1930 and doctorate from the London School of Economics in 1936, has been active in the world student movement for 17 years. Considered an expert on student and university needs in South-East Asia, he is also one of the most travelled secretaries of any student organization and in the past year he has toured through all the countries of Central and Eastern Europe on behalf of ISS.

Another principal speaker at the Conference will be Dr. James Gibson, for ten years Secretary to Prime Minister Mackenzie King and now head of the Department of History, Carleton College, Ottawa.

and improvements were suggested and noted, such as better handling of the letters on the board, and a better mirror.

Gerry Rowe was elected chairman of the annual Christmas dance, which is the main event on the calendar of the Women's Union. Buffet suppers, to be held several times during the remainder of the session, on Sunday evenings, met with approval by the coeds present. They are to be open to all women on the campus, who may invite their friends.

Main Door

The subject of the use of the main door of the Arts Building by women students, and the business of cheerleaders came under some discussion as well, and suggestions were noted by Mary Stephens, who chaired the meeting. It was pointed out that suggestion boxes have been placed in the Arts Building and R.V.C., and the executive would greatly appreciate any use that is made of them.

The meeting closed with reports from various clubs and societies under the jurisdiction of the Women's Union, and also from the Women's Union representative to Yugoslavia, Edith Cannon.

search for the Northwest Passage, published in 1793 and now worth approximately a hundred dollars.

INSTRUMENTS, CLOTHES

Also on display in the museum are scientific instruments commonly used in Arctic work, and many articles of Eskimo and Indian clothing. Included in a rapidly growing collection of photographs are scenes from the flight of the Lancaster bomber Arles, which shook existing theories on the location of the Pole, and an extensive display of photographs from the recent Musk-Ox expedition.

EXTENSIVE WORK

McGill University said Dr. Washburn, has not only been a very kind host to the Arctic Institute, but an important nucleus in Arctic research. Besides Dr. Polunin's work, there has been much interest among the departments of Geology, Geography, and Meteorology. Dr. McBeth was a medical officer on the Musk-Ox trip, and Prof. Joliffe of the Geology department has carried out extensive work in the Yellowknife district. Dr. Washburn wishes to extend an invitation to McGill students and the general public to visit the Institute headquarters since the organization is particularly desirous of encouraging new interest in Arctic research.

a Bank

THE VEIN proves rich, a shaft is sunk, and a new mining town springs into life. The main street takes form. Commercial buildings rise.

When such a development occurs, the services of a bank are needed—to handle payrolls, to keep savings accounts and, as the town grows, to furnish bank credit for the needs of the community.

This is a basic pattern in Canada's development. And part of it is the local bank manager, providing those financial services which help Canadian men and women to win the rewards of modern enterprise and modern living.

THIS IS ONE INSTANCE OF how Canada's 3,200 branch banks play their part in the daily life and work of Canadians.
